

Stanley L. Jaki

The One True Fold: Newman and his Converts

John Henry Newman

In questions of right or wrong there is nothing really strong in the whole world, nothing decisive and operative, but the voice of him, to whom have been committed the keys of the kingdom and the oversight of Christ's flock. The voice of Peter is now, as it ever has been, a real authority, infallible when it teaches . . . . Before its speaks, the most saintly may mistake, and after it has spoken, the most gifted must obey . . . . All who take part with Peter are on the winning side.

“Cathedra sempiterna” (1853)

1998